From Father Belken's Desk

While it seems like hardly the time to bring it up, considering the summer heat as of late, I've always had a certain enjoyment out of watching snow fall. It's an amazing thing to think about: that, what would normally be water in the form of rain drops becomes something altogether different. Not only this, but if enough of it falls, it tends to transform the entire landscape. Perhaps even in ourselves, we are given a certain sense of wonder at the sight!

We have to imagine this weekend that the Israelites had a certain sense of wonder when they were moving about the desert, and were given food in a similar way as snowfall. In the midst of their hunger, the Lord hears their cries for food, and eventually promises "bread from heaven." Every morning, the Israelites were provided this bread to save them from their hunger, which was truly a providential and great gift.

It is interesting that, this weekend, the crowds, after having eaten the loaves are again following Jesus, yet, they really don't understand the full scope of what He is there to do for them. When Jesus multiplied the loaves and fish, He gave them something that satisfied them for a time, and yet they eventually came back, since they had again become hungry. So, Jesus, again, tries to show them that there is something greater here. The manna that fell from heaven was important in it's time, yet there is something more significant. Even the multiplication of the loaves was something great in itself. Yet, there is, again, something greater. Even though the Lord Himself gave them all of these things, there is still something greater coming. He is preparing them for the Bread from Heaven that is actually His own Body. He provides the Bread of Life. While all of the previous signs and wonders that the Lord had provided were good things, there was something even better coming: a Bread that would, not only last for a time, but would last into eternity.

That, my brothers and sisters, is what comes to us in the Mass. Every time we receive the Eucharist, we receive the fulfillment of what the Israelites received in the desert, and even what the crowds received in the multiplication of loaves. We receive a Bread that has the ability to renew the landscape of our souls. It even comes to us much in the same way that we may see a snowfall, or even the Israelites might see the manna descending to feed them. At every Mass, we receive a gift that gives us an abundance of grace and seeks to transform us and to feed us in a way that only the Lord can. That, truly, is the Bread beyond what they could've imagined!

Fr. Belken
